The notable difference between the negroes in Middle Georgia and those on the seaboard—a difference toat extends to habits as well as disject—has given rise to certain ineradicable prejudices.

These were toroibly, as well as indicrous-ly, illustrated in the passenger depot yesterday. The air-line train brought in a gentleman from Savannah, who, ac-companied by his body-servant, had been spending the summer in Habersham County. The body-servant aliuded to was a very fine specimen of the average const darky, sleek, well-conditioned, and consequential, and seemed disposed to look with contempt upon everything and everybody not indigenous to the rice-growing region. A Stage Fire Nowadays,

In a piece by Victor Sejour, entitled "La Madame des Roses," there was shown a spacious half in a palace, with a terrace and staircase at the back, which were consumed in the flames The effect of the servants and others firing through the flames to make their escape, of the failing rafters, the sparks, the lurid red which filled the whole scene, was so complete that the spectators rose from their seats in alarm. Nothing was more simple than the ager-cy employed. The ordinary lime-light, turned on to the full, suffaced the stage with a flood of light, and seen through crimson glasses imparted a flerce glow of the same thr. Any vapor of the whitest kind moving in such a medium would at once give the notion of volumes. of lurid smoke. Accordingly, a few braziers filled with a powder known as "lycopodium" are placed at the wings, each fitted with a sort of torge bellows, each blast producing a sheet of flome and smoke. The lights in front being lowered, rows of little jets, day screened, are made to follow the lines of the beams, rafters, etc., and thus make these e.g. s stand outagainst the flerce bluze. the view, there ore, from befind has thus an almost prosy and or derly aspect, but the effect is complete.
